Queer Public Ownership
Can the Elephant Get Up?
Pickford-Rickenbacker
No More War, Thanks
By ARTHUR BRISBANE

1 PUBLIC OWNERSHIP
sounds like Bolshevism, Socialism and Communism to those that profitably depend private ownership. But citizens of Vinson, Iowa, where the city distributes municipally owned electric power, do not share the dread of "Bolshevik public ownership."

On November 1, they got word from the city that, having made a profit selling current at low rates, it would charge nothing for the October bill.

That has a rather convincing sound on the side of public ownership of natural monopolies. But, whatever the public takes over should be bought at a fair price, not forgetting that private initiative gave the public electric lights, gas, railroads, etc.

How would "No electric light or gas bill this month; it's on the house," sound to New York, Chicago or Los Angeles?

Chase Mellen, Jr., president of the Republican county committee in New York, who drove New York's long-time Republican boss, Mr. Koenig, from his job, writes editors to "direct their fire upon Republican reactionaries, many of whom react to draw a lesson from the Democratic avalanche of November 6." He thinks the Republican elephant should "quickly" get up to a tempo more in keeping with the times.

To teach an old elephant new tricks or new political dance steps is almost impossible. Besides, this elephant is old and it is down. Read about elephants in some good book on zoology, Mr. Mellen, and learn that if an old elephant gets down it is often unable to rise again. An elephant's hind legs fold back in a queer way, quite unlike the legs of a cow or a horse, and its snout becomes stiff. An old elephant, steeply standing on, sometimes leaning against a tree.

Young Republicans like Chase Mellen, Jr., must prod the elephant, and prod him hard, for if he doesn't get up soon he'll never get up. Some other elephant will have his job.

Speaking of the elephant's ludicrous way of folding its legs backward when it lies down, you may test your child's power of observation by asking: "When a cow and a horse rise after lying down, which end goes up first?" The answer is that the horse rises up with his front legs first, but the cow with his hind legs. But the old G. O. P. elephant may NEVER get up.

At the Association of Motion Picture Advertisers, which Mary Pickford was yesterday elected an honorary member for, she and Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker, best American fighting pilot, sat side by side, as in interesting juxtaposition.

WINNING REVEALED

4 BURNED IN OLD BLAST AT EVERETT

Four persons, including a fireman, were injured today when a terrific explosion wrecked and fired a group of buildings housing the Bay State Oil Co., in Orient avenue, Everett.

The injured persons were: Harold Tibbels, 35, chemist, Clarence street, Everett, serious burns on the face, head and shoulders, Whidden Memorial Hospital.

George L. Ladd, 46, Clarence street, Everett, burns on the head, arms and hands, Whidden Memorial Hospital.

E. Larry Gardner, 32, Winthrop street, Everett, injured hair and slight burns on the hand, treated at his home.

Lieutenant Arthur Oresten, Engine 1, Everett fire department, never got up. Some other elephant will have his job.

'And I'll Go Back to China'

The men who were burned were at work near an intake valve that became defective and caused the explosion. They were surrounded by flaming oil and were rescued by working firemen. How they escaped with their lives was a mystery to firemen.

The injured fireman was hurt when he tripped while carrying a hose line across the debris after the fire had been brought under control.

Southampton, England, Nov. 16.—Categorical denial testimony given by witnesses for Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney in the New York trial for custody of little Gloria Vanderbilt was issued here by Prince and Princess Gottfried zu Hohenlohe and Langenburg on their arrival on the liner Bremen from the United States.

In an exclusive interview with Universal Service the Prince talked for the first time of what went on behind the locked doors of the New York courtroom where the future of the "gold child" was being weighed in the balance.

POLICE SHOT 'KIDNAP' AMBUSH

Darien, Ct., Nov. 16.—Two police officers, one of them Chief Edward A. Tinker of Darien, were shot today as authorities sprang a trap and arrested three Rhode Island men in connection with what they described as an attempt to kidnap 13-year-old Robert Lewis, a son of Governor U. Weather, from his home here. A fourth suspect was later arrested.

The officers, including several State policemen from Westport barracks, had concealed themselves in the home of Robert's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Gustave U. Weather, in the Westport home in Brookfield avenue, and engaged in a free-for-all fight with four men who broke into the place.

Although his name was on the danger list at Central Hospital, Somerville, where his bride spent 72 hours at his bedside without going home, his condition has shown such improvement that it was decided to bring him to the courthouse in a police ambulance and then have him transferred to the East Cambridge jail hospital.

$100,000 LIQUOR TAX SWINDLE BARED BY AGENTS HERE

FORGED ORDER IS USED TO GET $1000 U. S. STAMPS

Walking boldly into the Boston federal liquor stamp tax office with a forged distillery order, an agent of the largest rum smuggling ring in New England purchased liquor tax stamps representing a loss of $100,000 in revenue to the government, the Boston Evening American learned today.

The bootleg agent bought a strip of revenue stamp tickets for $1000 in cash, it has been discovered, and through use of these stamps will be able to flood the city with at least 50,000 bottles of prohibited liquor.

This daring method of avoiding taxes and placing the bootleg liquor on the market as a genuine product is the latest conspiracy discovered in the drive against smugglers and illicit sellers.

As a result of the hold campaign, Colonel Josiah L. Reese, head of the alcoholic tax enforcement unit in New England has massed his special investigators and the fore attempt to trace the conspirators.

This fraud was executed within the last 10 days and federal agents believe the perpetrator is a member of the largest liquor smuggling ring in New England, one with headquarters both in Chelsea and Revere.

The time chosen was at noon when a girl clerk not entirely familiar with the routine and not knowing by sight the usual purchasers of stamps for bottles and distillers, was filling in at the counter.

The order, which appeared legitimate to the girl and which was made out in the name of a well-known distillery, was checked in files for signature, and the girl found that everything appeared to be above suspicion.

She stamped the order with the office approval stamp and the man then took it to the usual procedure, to the internal revenue office, where he paid $1000 and received a strip of stamps sufficient to place on about 50,000 bottles of liquor.

Two days later the regular agent of the same distillery arrived at Fitzgerald's office with an order for stamps. The clerk took it to the internal revenue office, asking why this order had been presented when an order for the same thing had been received only two days previously.

The time chosen was at noon when a girl clerk not entirely familiar with the routine and not

FORMER BOSTON FLIER KILLED

By Associated Press

ANN ARBOR, Mo., Nov. 16.—Twenty-two-year-old pilot died early today in the flaming wreckage of his transport plane on a farm three and one-half miles northwest of here.

H. C. Brinfield, 33, manager of the St. Joseph airport, and Ben F. Billings, 34, of Kansas City, former pilot of the Rapid Air Lines, local mail and passenger plane, were the victims. There were no passengers. The plane was bound from Omaha to Kansas City.

The plane was flying in a heavy fog, with a drizzle of rain.

Billings was manager of an airport in Boston from 1925 to 1928.

12 on Schooner Rescued at Sea

After being adrift for three days with a disabled engine and at the mercy of heavy seas, the Gloucester fishing schooner Frank W. Winkinson, with a crew of 12 men, was today towed into Newport by the coast guard patrol boat Icarus.

The schooner was located yesterday by a tank steamer which left provisions for the crew and wirelessed her position to the coast guard radio station at the navy yard. The Icarus has been searching for the vessel since late Tuesday afternoon.

Pastor Collapses in Court Over Divorce Action

Pitchburg, Nov. 16.—Parishioners of the Unitarian Church of Templeton who crowded probate court here to listen to testimony in the divorce case of Reverend Otto E. Duerr, their former pastor, had to wait until November 28 for his next instalment.

The Reverend Mr. Duerr, who said he was forced to resign his pastorate because of his wife's jealousy over a "red-headed woman," collapsed three times in three and a half hours on the witness stand.

Mrs. Duerr is contesting the pastor's divorce suit, based on cruel and abusive treatment charges.

She had previously testified that he paid marked attention to a "Mrs. Greenwood." She referred to her as the "red-headed woman."

On the witness stand the minister, who is still suffering from effects of a nervous breakdown, said that he had gone to Mrs. Greenwood's home to recuperate from his illness in July, 1932, but that other parishioners also had tendered their homes to him.

He denied that notes he passed to Mrs. Greenwood in church were personal letters of the sort Mrs. Duerr alleged. These were payments by instalments of $500 Mrs. Greenwood lent him to pay college tuition fees of his two daughters.

Reverend Mr. Duerr declared.

Miss Margaret Duerr, a daughter, followed the minister on the stand. She told the court that she went to the parsonage one night to see her mother and couldn't find her.

She opened the door of a clothes closet, the girl testified, and suddenly her mother popped up, yelling "Boo!"

Miss Duerr declared she believed her mother wasn't "thinking right" to do such a thing.

He was alone at the time of the accident. The car is owned by J. M. Jacobs of Cedar street, Roxbury.

WRECK DELAYS COMMUTERS

Several hundred commuters reached their offices and shops late this morning because the "T" M. Boston and Maine train out of North Station split a switch in the East Boston yard, derailing two of the five cars and tearing open the side of one of them against an abandoned signal tower.

Railroad officials said that none of the passengers was injured.

The commuters were transferred to other trains that brought them into the North Station. The entire schedule of arrivals and departures was disrupted while trains were rerouted around the wreck.

$15 Spent to Fight $3 Fine

William G. Strippe, chief executive of the town of Whitely, police chief and chairman of the Board of Selectmen, paid $15 traveling expenses to prove he should not pay a $3 fine.

Chief Strippe testified in municipal court that on the day he allegedly violated a parking rule on Travers street, neither he nor his car had been away from Boston since Deerfield, Judas Murray discharged him.

The chief then told the court he felt he should be reimbursed $15 which he had spent in order to come to Boston to appear. The trip had necessitated his staying at a hotel here.

Woman to Testify from Stretcher

Because she will never walk again, according to doctors, Mrs. Nellie L. Dow, 70, of Summer street, Lynn, will give testimony from a stretcher in Salem superior court.

She is suing Charles F. Ayer of Hamilton, a 60-year-old Boston financier, for $20,000 damages for injuries she claims to have received four years ago in an auto collision in Gloucester between her car and Ayer's.

Warmer Weather Replaces Chill

Below freezing temperatures all over Massachusetts and as low as eight degrees above zero in the western part of the state will be replaced by warmer weather today. Readings averaging 38 or 40 degrees are expected. The average temperature so far this month will have to drop 27 degrees before it will reach the normal seasonal figure.

Walter Riley Sees Helen Dancing, But Overlooks Breach of Discipline

SYNOPSIS

Luxurious to the nth degree of commercial splendor were the establishments of the Annapolis Beauty Salons, but dreary and uninteresting were the locker quarters of the operators, who dressed and "made-up" for business in white-washed, bare-like rooms. In one room, as they viewed their clients and donned their fresh, starched white uniforms, the girls talked, . . . talked chiefly about the Riley sisters, who managed each of the Annapolis Salons, and about Walter Riley, their brother and the owner of the salons. Among the operators was one who stood out from the rest—Helen Schiller. She was pretty, smart and very personable and took little part in the gossip of the others.

CHAPTER II

Helen Schiller was an expert manicurist. It was her specialty in the age of specialization, which was just dawning in beauty parlors. As many as 14 pairs of hands passed under her skillful fingers daily. She had regulars, of course, who were, for the half hour they sat with her over the manicuring table, intimate friends. She was a sympathetic and warm listener and many of them poured their woes and triumphs into her ears in weekly installments.

All her customers, almost without exception, talked about the Rileys. The Rileys were "Prominent Women." They were written up in magazine articles. (Miss Ginsberg, the publicity writer, got $150 dollars a week.) They gave beauty interviews and syndicated a daily beauty guide article in the newspapers. They acted as judges in the beauty contests that were beginning to sweep the country, and, of course, their fortune was magnified with each telling.

Helen liked to think her own thoughts and a silent appointment was a rare blessing. She had never worked anywhere other than for the Annapolis chain, coming right from the manicuring academy in Brooklyn. She had had only one more year to graduate from high school, but the war had brought her education to an abrupt close. Her father had been an "enemy alien." He was German—poetic German—so German in tradition that after 20 years in America he had still been an unnaturalized "foreigner." Cross-questioned by the registration board during the war, the little man saw red. He burst out into a torrent of indignation and outraged pride. He would undoubtedly have been clamped off to jail for it, but in his rage he burst a blood vessel.

Mrs. Schiller, an apple-faced little housewife, was stunned by her husband's death. The two girls, Helen and Belle, were in high school. Helen had only a year more to graduate. It had been Adolph's ambition to make school teachers of them. Mrs. Schiller had only one talent that she could turn into money, her cooking.

HELEN LANDS JOB
She cooked for private parties and catered at small weddings and engagement receptions, but she took her down in one week and the two girls, orphaned in a month, found themselves bewildered and penniless. A cousin, Tante Freda Havemeyer, took them in. Helen, of course, had to leave high school, but Belle, who was only thirteen, was in the first year and she stayed in. The quickest trade Helen could learn to enable her to

EXPENSIVE FALSE ALARMS BRING PENALTIES

Pulling false alarms in the Newton town is going to be so much fun from now on, because those who are caught must pay for their flouting police.

The first law was imposed today in Newton town on 17-year-old William Gray, Olive E. Buckley of Orange street, and the second on 14-year-old William Gray, whose name is withheld because of his young gentleman is none other than Kettles, former personal servant to the Prince of Wales.

The boy from Waban, alleged to have sounded a false alarm on Halloween night, was placed on probation for six months and ordered to pay the city 50 cents a month during that period—the money to be earned by himself.

OFF AGAIN ROBINSONS TO SOUTH SEAS

By Associated Press
Chicago, Nov. 16.—William A. Robinson, Cambridge explorer, and his wife, the former Pioneer Grant Chicago heiress, plan to leave tomorrow for San Francisco to commence another South Seas expedition.

Their first venture together ended in the Galapagos Islands when Robinson was stricken with appendicitis, and naval planes made a dramatic flight to the islands to save his life.

The couple plans to sail Wednesday for three months in Tahiti, where Robinson will write, and Mrs. Robinson recuperate from a recent precautionary removal of her appendix.

PAINT Nearly Fatal

By Associated Press
Philadelphia, Nov. 16.—"Sunny" Rae, 18, night club dancer, danced brightly in a coat of gold paint mixed with glycerine and rose water.

Her paint supply ran out last night, so she sent for some of the kind they use on radiators.

In the middle of her dance she collapsed. Hurried to a hospital, she was revived. Physicians said her closed pores almost killed her.

Walter Riley stood behind her in the doorway, watching.

Champ Goes 'Ritzzy,' Hires English Valet

FORMER VALET TO WALES NOW MAX BAER'S 'GENTLEMAN'

Hollywood, Nov. 16.—"The movie suit, sir?"

"No, Kettles, no. Definitely not the movie suit."

"Perhaps the tux, sir? It does have a certain juvenility, sir."

"Well, perhaps the tux, sir. Kettles, very good, sir. And the crimson tie, sir."

"Isn't it a bit loud, Kettles?"

"Striking, I would say, sir. The Prince was always very partial to crimson. If I may say so, sir."

"Very well, the crimson tie, Kettles."

A scene from Noel Coward's latest play, "The Prince of Wales."

Oh, so, just my morning at the dig (British for rooms) of Max Baer, rough and tough former prizefighter.

Max has gone and hired him a valet, and an ordinary Park avenue valet for Max. His gentleman is none other than Kettles, former personal servant to the Prince of Wales.

Max, who not so long ago was curving the lights and lives out of beef eaters at Livermore, Cal., is just a little uncomfortable about it all. He was more than gruff when a reporter ventured to ask him how it felt to have his bow drawn for him before he done his morning courtesy. "Men barked."

"That's my own business. What's an unusual about my having a valet?"

The champion, who was planning to fly to Mexico, D. F., today, admitted that work had ceased on his second movie. He remarked:

"Sure, I slipped the picture myself. I admit that as an actor I'm a good fighter."

His screen troubles, however, he laid at the studio's door, saying:

"How can I get across in a picture that buries me? I've given the studio 60 days, to make changes in the story."

He said that work on the film had been halted because the film was not to be released until shortly before Baer defends his championship next June.

BONUS Fate in SENATE

HOUSE STRONG FOR PAYMENT

POSSIBILITY OF COMPROMISE IS SEEN

Copyright, 1934, By the Associated Press

Washington, Nov. 16.—

A survey of congressional sentiment shows the House overwhelmingly favors cash payment of the soldiers' bonus and that the fate of the legislation rests almost entirely in the Senate.

It also strongly suggests the possibility of a compromise.

The survey, conducted by the Associated Press, shows 159 representatives in favor of the bonus and 47 against. Of the remaining members, all non-committal or unavailable, 98 voted for the bonus last session, 60 opposed it and 43 did not vote.

The Senate lineup divides evenly, with 21 for the bonus and 21 against. Half of the power non-committal or unavailable. There was no clear-cut vote in the Senate last session on which to base a further tally.

Speculation on how the doubtful Senators will vote is inconclusive. Many of them are pledged to support the administration and might be expected to follow President Roosevelt.

While the check in the House indicates a division similar to the overwhelming vote of 295 to 125 for the bonus in the last session, two conflicting factors may cause changes.

Since then President Roosevelt's administration has gathered new strength at the polls, despite his strong hint of a bonus vote. Countering this, the American Legion has come out for cash payment for the first time.

Some observers believe that factors which may settle the issue in Congress are: Whether the President set his face against all bonus proposals or offers to compromise; and the force of the drive conducted by the Legion and other service organizations.

Several suggestions along the compromise line were made by members of Congress in the survey.

The most frequently proposed was cancellation of interest on the adjusted service certificates, with many who oppose cash payment of the full face value offering to support such a move.

The part to be played by the American Legion, with its powerful influence at the capitol, will be decided next week at Indianapolis by its national executive committee.

While the national convention recommended cash payment, it also urged 15 other legislative moves, and it will be up to the executive committee to decide which to push hardest.

FAY VALLEE LOSES TWO APPEALS IN COURT

Justice Bernard L. Shientag of New York appellate court today O. K.'d Rudy Vallee's amendment to court petition enjoining Fay Webb Vallee from bringing additional suits against Rudy. She sued him for $7450 monthly, $10,000 expenses and $50,000 counsel's fees last March in California.

Vallee Victory Song! Fay Loses Court Plea

APPEALS OF CROONER'S WIFE ARE ROUTED BY JUDGE

By Associated Press

New York, Nov. 16.—The appellate division of the Supreme Court today denied an application by Fay Webb Vallee, wife of Rudy Vallee, orchestra leader, to strike from his answer and counter-claim to her suit for separation and increased alimony.

Mrs. Vallee had appealed from an order of Supreme Court Justice Bernard L. Shientag, who permitted

Vallee to amend his answer in her suit.

Vallee asked in the amended answer that a stipulation be entered that she be permitted to amend her answer at any time.

Vallee received $100 a week but that she be permanently enjoined from bringing suits against him elsewhere.

She also appealed from an order of Supreme Court Justice Charles B. McLaughlin denying her application to strike out Vallee's amendment.

In both appeals Mrs. Vallee was unsuccessful.

'Alice' Dies at 82 in 'Wonderland'

In Long Coma

HEROINE ENDS HER STRANGE JOURNEYING

By International News Service

Westerham, Eng., Nov. 16.—Alice's Adventures in Wonderland came to an end today.

Mrs. Alice Liddell Hargreaves, the original Alice of Lewis Carroll's immortal classic of childhood, died in her little Kentish cottage here at the age of 82.

A stroke suffered several weeks ago while motorcycling carried her away just 26 years after the death of the quiet Oxford Don who spun the story of "Alice in Wonderland" for her when she was a ten-year-old girl.

Mrs. Hargreaves had been in a coma for some days before her death.

Mrs. Hargreaves was born Alice Liddell, the daughter of a country dean who was an old friend of Charles Lutwidge Dodgson, the teacher of mathematics who wrote under the name of Lewis Carroll.

Alice had two sisters, but it was upon her that Carroll lavished most of his affection. He himself has written how he conceived the idea of Alice and the white rabbit and the Cheshire cat while punting on the Thames with the little girl and her sister.

New York, Nov. 16 (AP).—Edith L. Johnson of Camden, N. J., owns the original manuscript of "Alice in Wonderland," which Lewis Carroll gave Mrs. Alice Hargreaves as a Christmas present. He bought it from Dr. A. S. W. Rosenbach of New York city, who in turn bought it at a London auction sale in 1928.

Dr. Rosenbach paid approximately $77,000 for it.

$1,000,000 Bogus Bill Earns Lunacy Charge

Kirbyville, Texas, Nov. 16.—With a few days of green paint a Newton county negro touched up a $1 bill to read $1,000,000. He advised the Newton bank he wanted to deposit all except $200, which he needed at the moment.

United States Attorney Bennett said he would waive federal charges if Newton county tried the negro for lunacy.

PAINT Nearly Fatal

Philadelphia, Nov. 16.—"Sunny" Rae, 18, night club dancer, danced brightly in a coat of gold paint mixed with glycerine and rose water.

Her paint supply ran out last night, so she sent for some of the kind they use on radiators.

In the middle of her dance she collapsed. Hurried to a hospital, she was revived. Physicians said her closed pores almost killed her.

MOTHER HOLDS GLORIA'S CASH; TO APPEAL

New York, Nov. 15.—The unexpected decision of Supreme Court Justice John F. Carew in the Vanderbilt-Whitney legal suit for the custody of Gloria Vanderbilt, 10-year-old heiress, will be appealed immediately, a spokesman for Mrs. Gloria Morgan Vanderbilt, the child's mother, said today.

Following termination of the habeas corpus hearing in which Mrs. Vanderbilt sought to regain custody of little Gloria from the child's paternal aunt, Justice Carew announced he had decided the young heiress would not have for the future the kind of life she had led from the death of her father until June, 1932.

During this period, Gloria was with her mother.

The Vanderbilt spokesman confirmed reports that Justice Carew had decided to allow Mrs. Whitney to keep the child five days a week, Mrs. Vanderbilt to have her Saturdays and Sundays.

MOTHER HOLDS FORTUNE

This plan, the spokesman disclosed, is to be followed until Gloria is 14 years old, when she may decide for herself with whom she will make her home.

But the child's mother, Mrs. Gloria Morgan Vanderbilt, retains control of her daughter's $3,000,000 fortune, from which an income of nearly $48,000 a year is realized.

An appeal from Justice Carew's decision, the spokesman said, will be filed in the appeals division within the next few days, and if Mrs. Vanderbilt is unsuccessful there, the case will be taken to the Court of Appeals. He said:

"We want a final determination once and for all. The compromise the judge made will result in hostility, antagonism, hate and the poisoning of the child's mind against her mother."

"Even the religious issue is confused as Gloria will be in an Episcopal home (Mrs. Whitney's home) five days a week and in a Catholic home for two days."

NURSE IS DISCHARGED

The spokesman said that opposing attorneys had been asked to

Little Gloria and Her $4,000,000

Reginald Vanderbilt, divorced from Cathleen Neilson in 1920, spent three unhappy years trying to spend his $2,000,000 inheritance. He came close to succeeding, although the world in general was not aware of the fact. Then in 1923, he fell in love again, and started a happy married life with Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt, Reginald's step-mother. Mrs. Vanderbilt has proven a friend when most of the family opposed that marriage. Through the long trial she has taken no part in the court doings. Her name has only been mentioned incidentally.

A $7,000,000 bequest from his father, Cornelius Vanderbilt. In addition, Reginald had the income from a $3,000,000 trust fund. It was stipulated that this fund should go to his children. On his death, half went to a daughter by his former wife. The other $2,500,000, which has grown to $4,000,000, went to

Gloria Mercedes Morgan, 13, one of the two daughters of American consul general to Argentina, Harry Hays Morgan, Sr. The two and a half years the couple were together, she said to have been ideally happy. When he died in 1923, he left her little money. She turned for aid to

Mrs. Henry Hays Morgan, her mother. Although of late years, Mrs. Vanderbilt sent $50 per month for her shrunken income to Mrs. Morgan, the latter said Mrs. Vanderbilt was not a proper person to have custody of her own child. It never was explained how Reginald had spent

Gloria Laura Vanderbilt, then only 16 months old. Up to 1930, little Gloria spent most of her time with her mother in France, Italy and other parts of the world. Because the mother had been under 21 when Reginald died she could not qualify as custodian of the huge trust fund. So submit a joint order upon which the court would have the final decision, but that Nathan Burien, counsel for Mrs. Vanderbilt, had refused to collaborate in preparation of this order because he felt that his suggestions would be ignored in the court's decision.

To remove influences which it is felt may embitter the little girl against her mother, Mrs. Emma Keislich, the nurse who has cared for Gloria since she was a baby, must be discharged within a month. This was ordered by Justice Carew. The young mother, ill at her home as a result of the strain of the long court ordeal, suffered a fresh relapse when relative broke to her the news of Justice Carew's decision. Attending physicians, worried by her long illness and by the extreme mental depression which they fear may retard her recovery, strongly advised a sea voyage and complete

Cast of Characters and Plot

George W. Wickham, one-time U. S. attorney general, was named custodian. Later Tom Gilchrist was appointed joint custodian. The custodians permitted $500 per month for little Gloria's expenses and $200 per month to the mother, whose own income is $100 per year out of

Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney, paternal aunt, stepped into the case. Little Gloria had visited Mrs. Whitney several times during 1930, 1931 and 1932. Last September 31, little Gloria left home to feed pigeons in Central Park, New York. However, she was taken to the Whitney home by Prince Gottfried zu Hohenlohe and Langenburg as having been too friendly with Mrs. Vanderbilt. Testimony was of such a nature that the public and press were barred from the courtroom. Accompanied by his wife, the prince came to America to testify.

The $1000 permitted by the courts to be taken from the total income of the trust fund, Mrs. Vanderbilt has pleaded that she was unable to provide for her daughter. Last summer the mother asked that she be declared the legal guardian of her child. Then

Nurse Emma Keislich. Later Mrs. Whitney sued for the custody of the child, alleging that Mrs. Vanderbilt was not a person who had charge of little Gloria. At the hearings, sensational testimony was given by former Vanderbilt servants. Nurse Keislich charged wild parties in Europe, naming change of scene. Justice Carew's ruling. It was emphasized, in no way affects the income from the $2,800,000 trust fund left the child by her father, the late Reginald C. Vanderbilt. The fund is administered by George W. Wickham and Thomas Gilchrist.

Supreme Court Justice Carew in New York City. After seven weeks of hearing testimony, the justice ordered Gloria be placed in Mrs. Whitney's care for four years, with the stipulation that the mother could have the child on Saturdays and Sundays.

It was Mrs. Keislich who gave some of the most sensational testimony before Justice Carew. She testified that she had seen Mrs. Vanderbilt in the act of taking the child to the trial and declared whether she wishes to continue along the lines set up in the present ruling, or whether she prefers some other arrangement.

At the same time, it was said, she may also say whether she wants to have Wickham and Gilchrist continue as her legal guardians.

Four years hence, when she is 14, Gloria Vanderbilt may go into court and declare whether she wishes to continue along the lines set up in the present ruling, or whether she prefers some other arrangement.

OLD STEAMSHIP LINE GIVES UP

New York, Nov. 16 (INS).—Because of the increasing competition of trucks, the New London line, oldest operating steamship on the Atlantic coast, had abandoned operations today. The line was started in 1860, a scant 25 years after Pullman's maiden trip.

When the little sound steamer New Hampshire tied up at her pier in the North River, and the last passenger was checked off, the company closed the books on what tens of thousands of passengers had been tabulated. In the 54 years of service, not a single passenger had been lost.

Princess Reveals Secrets of Vanderbilt Trial

In behalf of Mrs. Gloria Vanderbilt, mother of the child, asserted that Mrs. Whitney's witness were confused and mixed up when called by Mrs. Vanderbilt's attorneys to the stand. Hohenlohe said: "Mrs. Whitney in testifying had very little to say regarding the case. All she said was: 'I think the child would be better off with me.'"

PRINCESS TELLS EVIDENCE

Princess Hohenlohe said: "Typical of the alleged witness was the witness Mrs. Vanderbilt gave a party where prominent society women were supposed to have wandered about nude with glasses of champagne in each hand."

"The witness alleged that this took place in April, but it was proved that Mrs. Vanderbilt left America the end of March."

"I know the charges against my husband—he was supposed to have been seen wearing pajamas in Mrs. Vanderbilt's room, but only on one occasion. But two witnesses who testified against him said this took place on two different dates."

"Besides, in the summer when my husband visited Mrs. Vanderbilt, Mrs. Thaw (sister of Mrs. Vanderbilt) stayed in the bedroom with her, and Mrs. Morgan (her mother) lived in the same house. They tried to prove that the prince's engagement with Mrs."

TROOPS GUARD RECOUNTS IN STATE

Democratic State Senate hopes were withering today when Senator Joseph B. Clancy losing the 567 vote lead he had over Albert C. Wallace, and Cole forging ahead by 26 votes. Of 41 precincts, 22 were checked.

This blow fell at the temporary end of an Essex County recount in Lynn City Hall. The halt was called at 3 a. m. after a night of storm and protest in which the election commission was the target of a bitter barrage of criticism.

Not only Clancy, but other candidates for offices in which recounts were being made, openly charged Election Chairman John R. Wallace with violating procedure. Complainers included Republicans as well as Democrats. Wallace is a Democrat.

John J. Foley, Democrat, who is contesting the re-election of District-Attorney Hugh A. Clegg of Essex County, demanded admittance inside the railing surrounding the recount checkers.

Attorney John R. Murphy, representing William G. Hennessey, filed protest that Wallace did not give his client the three-day notice required by law when a recount was to be started. Hennessey was elected governor's councilor. The present incumbent, Eugene Fraser, is contesting.

Frank J. Riley, Hennessey's campaign manager, asserted that he would today petition for a guard of state troopers to oversee future counting.

If the remainder of the precincts in the Clancy-Cole contest fail to reestablish Clancy's lead, the State Senate will swing Republican in strength. It is now split 20-20.

Democrats had been rejoicing in the balancing of that body, securing for the first time in a generation a chance to elect a president and at least partially the powerful committee hitherto controlled by the G. O. P.

But in the protested recount Clancy lost 151 votes in 22 precincts, mostly Republican, and Cole gained 122. Political observers said that it was unlikely that Clancy could win out with the Democratic precincts only left to be reheeled.

conference that brought about the "satisfactory arrangements," it was learned. Walter O'Hara, promoter of the Narragansett track, where the public wagered more than $200,000,000 last summer—most of the bottom being from Greater Boston—is to conduct the dog track business in Boston unless present plans are disrupted.

Whether O'Hara personally sat in at the parties of the past 24 hours cannot positively be stated.

GARDEN DIRECTOR

O'Hara, a manufacturer and wealthy resident of Providence, formerly of Fall River, is a director of the Boston Garden Corporation. He denied last night that he had any interest in seeing either Charles F. Conners or William H. Ensign as members of the new racing commission of which Gen. Charles H. Cole has been named chairman.

Dog racing will be a new departure in Boston. It has only been conducted heretofore at society fetes. To the public of New England it is a new field for wagering, and the novelty is expected to make it a more profitable venture than the horse—for a time.

The dog track will be at the Boston Garden or at Braves Field, it is understood. O'Hara is connected with the former and has opened negotiations concerning the latter. He will still have his track at Narragansett.

There can be only one more horse track in Massachusetts in addition to the one at which is now scheduled for licensing. The other must be at least 60 miles distant, placing it beyond Worcester.

Plans have already been made so that the dates of the Massachusetts horse meets will not interfere either with the dog racing or Rhode Island or Rockingham horse tracks. The New Hampshire track cannot operate next year unless the Legislature again legalizes it.

A horse track in Boston, preferably at the old Grand Circuit location in Roxbury, was demanded by City Councilman Clement A. Norton, in a letter to Mayor Mansfield.

Horsemen Declare Ely Board Incompetent

A group of horsemen associated with the original petitioners for an initiative referendum on the racing bill were in communication with Executive Secretary William Reid of the Governor's Council today.

PEEK HEARING

They sought to learn the proper procedure to file a formal request for a public hearing opposing the making of the present racing commission.

Attorney Conrad W. Crocker, who was counsel for the 5000 petitioners and who filed one of the racing bills last year conferred with more than a score of the petitioners today in his office at 60 State street. Following the conference, Attorney Crocker stated:

"The conference held today had to do with the filing of a public hearing before the governor's council before the present racing commission is continued."

The entire group at the meeting here today has been connected with racing tracks for more than 20 years. They all felt that the appointees of Governor Ely to the racing commission are utterly incompetent to fill that position. Regardless of their success in their respective business.

"Everyone present has the highest regard for the honesty and integrity of the three appointees. But mere honesty among the commissioners will not be enough to govern racing in this state."

"Unless men who are familiar with racing conditions in all its aspects are appointed to our commission our state will be flooded with the parasites who have ruined the racing game in many other states."

Ely Defends Racing Board: No Eye on White House

Governor Ely today defended his appointees to the new state racing commission in an interview that touched on everything from his availability as presidential timber in 1936 to his attitude toward Governor-elect Curley.

Of the Cole racing commission, the Governor said: "It is a good commission. I don't think they are tied to any 'interests' and I believe they will administer the law as honestly as any commission can administer it."

Declaring that it was his opinion that only the Boston area would get par-mutual betting on races under the new law, Ely indicated his personal attitude toward the "report of kings" in a single sentence.

"I wouldn't be sorry if we had no racing at all in Massachusetts."

EMILES AT REPORTS

Questioned about reports that he was being considered as either the presidential or vice-presidential candidate of a 1936 fusion party of all Smith Democrats and Republicans, the Governor smiled.

"I have no desire to hold any public office. All I want is to retire from this one and return in peace to the practice of my profession—the law. I can't understand how anyone can find any basis for such statements. I know nothing about this fusion party."

"Still in the mood to discuss public questions as they affected him, the governor turned the interview into a kind of farewell address. Subjects that he got off his chest included:

GOVERNOR-ELECT CURLEY

"I have no desire to impede his successful administration. I am not personal, and never have been in politics. I am interested in men, but I am more interested in ideas. I know the harassing cares, duties and responsibilities of the governorship. He (Curley) should have a mind as free from outside care and perplexities as possible. I have not done anything yet through spite or personal animosity in my career, and I don't propose to start now."

"I am interested in principles. If I call public attention to what I think are failures in duty, it is with no feeling of pleasure or satisfaction."

PROSPERITY — "The only thing in which I am interested is the restoration of a reasonable prosperity in this country. I will, so long as anyone is willing to listen, express my convictions in regard to the best methods which will bring about that reasonable prosperity."

The Administration—"In my present frame of mind, it seems that some substantial and constructive measures are being taken at present by the Administration in Washington which give hope to me beyond any that I have held in the last five months for the immediate beyond any that I have held in the last five months for the immediate future."

WANTS MODIFIED NRA

NRA AND SEC—"I believe that the modification of the NRA is in the interest of better business. And I believe that Mr. Kennedy, as head of the Securities Exchange Commission, has qualified the mind of the business world in regard to the purpose of the Security act by his papers of the committee set yesterday. We should have greatly increased confidence on the part of the investment bankers."

EXERCISE—"I believe there should be a new method of re-licensing."

The Governor explained that he favored definite allotments by the federal government to the state. These allotments to be under the control of the governor, who he believes, are best qualified to use where it is most needed and with a minimum of duplication.

MISSING SALEM GIRL FOUND IN NEW YORK

Found in New York late last night, 13-year-old Jeanne Marie Kampf of Salem, who speaks Chinese and French as fluently as she does English, said to police today she would run away again.

Missing from her home since Nov. 4, she was sought in Chinatown sections of both Boston and New York because she had told school-chums that she yearned to return to China where she had spent eight years of her life.

Jeanne told police that she had intended to stay in New York only long enough to get money to go back to China, where she had spent the happiest years of her life.

"I hate New York, and I like Salem even less," she said.

"I love China and I want to go back there. I was born there and went to school there, and I miss it."

Told that her mother was coming from Salem for her, she said: "I don't care. I'll go back to Salem, but I'll get another chance to run away."

Asked about her trip, she said: "I put $25 in my purse and took a train. I put up at a hotel on 32d street, and stayed there till my money ran out."

The hotel man told me to go to the Salvation Army home on 22d street. That was a work ago. I've been looking for work ever since."

Yesterday I was promised a job as stewardess on a steamer and it looked as if my dreams were going to come true, that I was going to get back to China.

"If I hadn't given my correct name at the steamship office, it would have been all right. I have my right New York address, too. The steamer people never dreamed I was only 13."

Detective Martin of the missing persons bureau said she had 25 cents in her purse and a rosary when he took her to the Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Children.

Libby Demands All for Baby

By Universal Service

Winston-Salem, N. C., Nov. 15.—Because a bank made $5,000,000 worth of trouble for her son, Mrs. Holman, torchbearer crooner and actress, made $25,000,000 worth of trouble for that bank by claiming on behalf of her infant son, Christopher Smith Reynolds, the entire fortune of her murdered husband, Zachary Smith Reynolds, tobacco heir.

Attorneys for the child, toothless babe of young Reynolds and his Broadway bride, entered a claim for the entire estate for Libby's son, on the eve of today's scheduled hearing on the motion of the Citizens Bank and Trust Company to claim a full share of the $25,000,000 fortune for a child by Reynolds' first marriage.

"Too late," J. J. Reynolds, Jr., Zachary's father, left a fortune estimated at $100,000,000, to be distributed equally among his four children and their issue, as soon as the children reached the age of 21. Zachary was 21 when killed by a mysteriously fired bullet in his home. Libby and Al Walker, Reynolds' pal, were indicted for murder but charges were withdrawn.

Prior to his marriage to the Broadway star, Reynolds had been divorced by his first wife, Anne Cannon Reynolds, after birth of a daughter. She has since remarried. At the time of the divorce, a settlement of $1,000,000—claim against his estate—was made by Reynolds upon his infant daughter.

Wakefield Liquor License Prices Up

ERIN IN FIGHT OVER DONEGAL

Donegal, Irish Free State, Nov. 15.—A petition drawn up by Donegal Tories proposing that part of County Donegal be ceded to Ulster has stirred up a ruckus here.

The petitioners urged that part of the county, which is geographically isolated from the rest of the Free State, should be cut off and joined to Northern Ireland, thereby becoming again an integral part of the British Empire.

Rug Burglars in Auburndale

Auburndale residents who close their homes to go South this winter were requested today to notify Police Chief Michael T. Hughes of their departure. This is to permit the police to take extra precautions to prevent the spread of a wave of burglaries now sweeping Boston's suburbs.

The request was made today after Herbert W. Bosworth of 42 Oakland avenue reported burglars had broken into the home of Mrs. Helen M. Fuller, Lexington road, where he is caretaker. They took six Oriental rugs, one of which is worth $1000, he said.

Swap Editor Told Eleven in Family Need Clothes

Requests for children's clothes continue to pour in. A mother of eleven children, four girls ages 15, 14, 8 and 2 and seven boys aged 13, 10, 9, 7, 5, and 3 asks for clothes for them all.

A twelfth arrival is expected in the family and there are no clothes for it.

A South Boston resident requests clothes for boys aged 13 and 5%.

An unfortunate woman of Roxbury who is ill cannot visit the out-patient department of the hospital because she has not a warm coat.

A young mother has not a stove to heat her baby's milk, not to mention keeping warm.

One young man has nothing to wear in the way of trousers except dungarees. They are so patched they probably will not last very much longer. The youth wears trousers with size 32 waist and 31 leg.

He is forced to go halless, so would appreciate a cap size 7. In place of a coat he wears a sweater so would welcome a warm jacket size 20.

We have received a pitiful plea for a parlor stove. The same party asks for shoes for girls size 12 or 1.

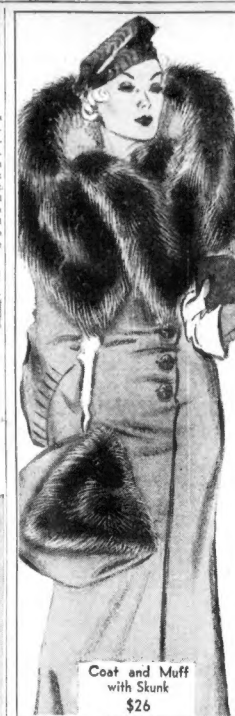

The girls are aged 8, 6 and 4 and need clothing.

One mother has a seven year old girl who is ill and in addition has not even the necessary clothes. The woman herself needs dresses also.

REICH PLACES NAZI SWASTIKA ABOVE CROSS

By Universal Service
Berlin, Nov. 14.—The Swastika must stand unrivalled as the symbol of the third Reich and any effort to place above it the Christian cross, Catholic or Protestant, will be crushed. Here, just, Reich's minister of education declared here.

William E. Dodd, American ambassador, heard this declaration delivered in a speech at a reception to the diplomatic corps and foreign newspapermen.

Reich asserted the Nazis do not want to meddle with the churches themselves, but that the "booked cross" of Nazism must always go before the crosses of the religious groups in Germany.

German youths, the minister said, must be educated first as Germans, then as Catholics or Protestants. He denied that Chancellor Hitler's party is inspiring young men to waver in their religious aspirations.

"We educate them to love the Fatherland and reverence, but not to hate foreign countries."

Reich announced that in 1935 he would inaugurate a revised school plan for the entire country, in which Germans from six to 12 years of age will be taught, first, citizenship, and second, loyal adherence to Nazi ideals.

Everett's License Ballot Recount Plea Is Scored

Charges of irregularities in the petitions for a recount of the license vote in Everett which were made today by Charles Paisley of the registrars of voters. The charges that name aimed at the recount petition are set on the voting list, are different from those on the voting list and that wrong addresses are given. Paisley said he made a "thorough" examination of the petition, which has been placed in the hands of City Solicitor W. Henry Finnegan for further examination and for a ruling as to its legality.

CITY PASTOR'S CHARGE

Paisley also criticized Rev. Harold C. Abbot, pastor of the First Baptist Church, for remarks in which Dr. Abbot is said to have declared that big trucks with bottles of liquor had backed up to 2000 retail liquor places under cover of darkness to unload.

If such conditions were observed, Paisley declares, Dr. Abbot should have immediately notified police. Rev. Dr. Abbot, Rev. Hugh MacCallum of the First Congregational Church and Rev. James G. Lane of the First Methodist Church headed the recount petition and were largely instrumental in obtaining the signatures in the petition. Everett favored license by a margin of 327 votes.

LITTER CLEARED AWAY

Police are investigating the deluging of the First Methodist Church and the parsonage with thousands of "Vote for License" circulars and literature during the night. Apparently they represented material left over from election day.

So many circulars were thrown about the church and the parsonage that Dr. Lane notified the board of public works, which sent men to clean up nearly a ton of the waste paper. Where it came from and how it was carried to the church is under inquiry by police. Rev. Dr. Lane said today if the ruling of City Solicitor Finnegan is against the recount petition, the ministers will engage counsel and

WOMAN'S NEWS TIP OR WRECK WINS $25

BY THE NEWS TIP EDITOR.

The agonizing hiss of escaping steam—a sound like that of some frantic, wild thing, mad with pain and trying to free torture—called Ruth H. Blison of Main street, Clinton, to her kitchen window.

One glance showed her the wreck on the nearby railroad tracks. Instantly she remembered that railroad coaches, torn, toppled and twisted, as front page news.

She called Liberty 4000 and asked for the Boston Evening American's News Tip Editor. And now she gets the $25 first prize for reporting the best story of the week. Next time may be your turn.

HOLD-UP TIP WINS

The second prize of $10 goes to a man who asked that his name be withheld—something the News Tip Editor always said to do, if requested. He called with news of a $2000 hold-up in the Back Bay. The third prize winner also asked that his name be withheld. He contributed important information about the solution of the murder of Mr. and Mrs. Paul A. Connelley on their lonely Lowell poultry farm.

Prizes of $1 each—they are awarded each and every week—this time go to the following:

AT PRIZE WINNERS

Thomas Carpenter, 303 Hancock street, Quinor, for news of an automobile crash. L. Brackett, 3 Gullford street, Allston, for word of a runaway.

Name withheld, for news of a man in his first arrest, South Boston. Name withheld, rescue of the crew of a half-submerged boat.

Amos J. Archair, 3137 Washington street, Dorchester, because he called to tell of a flaming gasoline truck.

Name withheld, for information as to the identity of the slain member body found in quick lime at Foxboro.

Francis Halloran, 48 Commercial street, South Boston, for news of the sudden death of the Rev. James J. Kenney, South Boston.

F. J. Curtis, 17 St. William's street, Dorchester, for a flash when a man leaped off the Summer street bridge.

Mrs. Jessie E. Gemma, Main street, Clinton, for information and pictures of the railroad wreck there.

John P. Belasco, 1914 Beacon street, Allston, for calling when he saw a man drop dead in Ashburton place, Beacon Hill.

News stories are "breaking" all over, all the time. You may be on the scene the next time an important one develops. Remember to telephone Liberty 4000 just as you can. It will put you in line for a News Tip prize.

Kresge Store Will Reopen as 5-and-10

After extensive alterations, the S. S. Kresge store at 112 Tremont street will reopen tomorrow as a five and ten, a change from the previous policy. One of the features of the renewed store is the manner in which decorations have been carried out, with a color scheme of wine red, pale green and silver. Modernistic motifs, adapted from a decorative design shown at the World Fair, are built into the wall above the ledgers and the entire store is styled as the most artistically appointed of any of the 727 Kresge stores in the country.

MORRO OFFICER TELLS OF FIRE By International News Service New York, Nov. 16.—Eben S. Abbott, chief engineer of the ill-fated liner Morro Castle, which burned to a loss of 143 lives on September 8, explained to a steamship inspection service board today why he never went to the engine room the night of the fire. "When the alarm rang," he told inspectors Colson and Chapman, "I saw Anthony Buja, first assistant engineer, and told him to go to the engine room. I went back to my room to complete dressing. That took me four or five minutes, as a during that time Buja telephoned me to say it was very smoky below but the pumps and engines were running." "Why didn't you go below when you finished dressing?" he was asked. "I went to check up on the deck house," Abbott said. WILL SHUT UP SHOP
According to the government investigator's statement, Young... whose name the firm bears... has been developed for a man now in Europe said that the Federal street office of which he declined... previous knowledge... would be closed at once and that the Milk street shop would have it closed within three days.

MUST REDEEM MONEY
If the firm does not return to the 25 customers who were on its books the equivalent of their accounts a late-day protest will be begun, Attorney Callahan asserted.

Callahan said that the raid was the result of complaints made to the New York headquarters of the S.E.C. His action followed by only a few hours the warning of Joseph P. Kennedy, chairman of the federal committee that frauds were flourishing and people in general were protesting for the "sucker list."

The closed concern, Callahan explained, was what is known as a "sell and switch" house. He said:

"The firm opened for business in October and while it had not yet progressed to the point where it had actually switched to doubtful securities, it is probable that it would have been done if we delayed a few weeks."

Braves Field Is Measured O'Hara Would Take For Dog Track; Club Control: Baseball May Move to Fenway Worried Over Racing

By AUSTEN LAKE

HERE IS A SNOOTFUL. A few days ago a civil engineer, equipped with transit, chain, and rod, measured Braves Field for a dog track in the interest of Walter O'Hara, the Narragansett proprietor, who has his hand on the Massachusetts racing pulis. The plan, of course, is to turn Braves Field into a quarter-mile dog-track, complete with sand-and-saucer, electric bunny, betting booths and whippet-kennels.

The franchise is forthcoming, if and when O'Hara and Judge Fuchs come to mutual terms, which now seems likely. But—and here is the hitch—it was found that a dog track, because of its size and awkwardness, would not permit removal between the Braves home games. It would have to be semi-permanent.

So, just as soon as Messrs. Thomas Yawkey and Eddie Collins stop shooting wild life on the former's Carolina plantation, Judge Fuchs is going to propose that he move the Braves' baseball club over to Fenway Park for all home games, and that Braves Field, henceforth, be turned over to dog racing and similar sporting carnivals.

THERE ARE SOUND REASONS behind all this. 1.—That baseball is in for some bumpy sledding next season with horse and dog racing going on continually from June to November and distracting a huge payroll of customers.

The Braves, needful of added income to keep the shirt of income and the pants of income from shrinking apart, are snatching at opportunity.

Dog racing, run in the evenings under batteries of night lights, may hose a stream of beautiful dollars into the club's treasury.

2.—The use of a common ball park, and particularly one as prettily compact as Fenway Park, would whittle down the overhead for both teams and permit the field to be used 154 days in the season, barring rain.

THERE ARE STILL A LOT of ifs, ands and buts in this picture. Because Yawkey, being independent financier, has no amateur bull man at heart, may say, "We don't like the idea of dog racing in Braves Field, and we will not rent Fenway Park to further the scheme."

St. Yawkey is key man to the situation there. Also, O'Hara, who is a canny cuss, could, if he wishes, use the Braves Field project as a sort of nut cracker to break open the Garden pecan and force his own terms.

Like the Braves, the Garden is looking to dog racing to yank its financial fat out of the furnace and is planning an eight-day-to-the-mile-track after the hockey season. O'Hara has a small investment in the Garden's new deal—said to be $15,000—and has hinted at control.

Having Braves Field, with a full-sized track and unlimited seating space, he is in a position to dictate his own terms with the Garden, which offers the advantages of security against bad weather. Get it?

THIS IS NOT THE FIRST TIME the Braves and Red Sox have talked about living under one roof, or more exactly, one patch of sky. Four years ago, when Bob Quinn was master of Fenway's acres, he and Judge Fuchs held conversations on the subject. But then Bob was the author, wanting to turn his property into cash and become a joint tenant in Braves Field.

For a short while things went along swimmingly, but suddenly Bob exploded, the judge went into a pet, and harmony flew out of the window.

It is ridiculous, of course, that two high-priced major league clubs should keep separate establishments which are used, at best, only 65 days of the year, and for the rest lie idle, eating their heads off in taxes and upkeep.

St. Louis is the only major league city where the rival owners share the same park. In the other two-club cities, Philadelphia, Chicago, Boston and New York, the rival clubs have millions invested in real estate, keep separate crews of ushers and ticket takers, pay high wages to ground crews, carpenters and electricians.

The answer, of course, is that mutual jealousies and ranking distrust between the leagues have stopped the owners from living in happy communion and saving $50,000 to $100,000 a year.

YOU MAY BELIEVE THAT THE Braves and Red Sox are worried about the encroachments of racing in this section next season. The Sox gleamed about $300,000, or 10 per cent on their investment last year, mainly because Boston is hungry for better baseball and responded to Yawkey's lavish spending. But the Braves had a bleak year.

Boston fans feel friendly toward Judge Fuchs and sympathize with his predicament. Yet human nature is such that the public will not back sentiment with hard cash unless the product, baseball or biscuits, is properly merchandised.

Fuchs, being an able showman, knows this. Which is why he flurried briefly with Babe Ruth for manager during the last month. But sound sense triumphed in the end, and Bill McKechnie, who is universally known as the best and ablest manager in the major leagues, is staying on.

If the Braves' hands will help to save Yawkey's bacon, since we must have the skinny, snake-bellied animals in our midst, I hope he gets the benefit of them. Just as I hope, when it comes time to talk rental terms at Fenway Park, Yawkey and Collins will prove reasonable.

BRENNAN

A bit of fancy golf guarding by Alex Wood, left the Bruin Cubs in the cold again, still seeking their first victory of the 1934-35 campaign in the Can-Am League. A bitter defeat, too, since the Arrows upset them, 3 to 2, in their home debut before 3500 fans at the Arena. Here Wood falls flat on the ice to stop a sizzling shot by Bert McInenly who had just taken a pass from Joe Jerwa. The Arrow defense of Hudson and Deemars was fooled while Doug Brennan skated in to lend a little assistance. (Picture by Boston American Staff Photographer.)

RECRUITS STAR AS CUBS LOSE

Although they did not appear any too formidable going down to a 3 to 2 defeat before the Philadelphia Arrows in their Boston opener at the Arena, the Cubs showed at least two promising recruits, Alex Motter and Phil Bessler. On a three-man attack with Stan McCabe, the ex-leaver, and Gus Fordlund, who was with the team two years ago, Doug Brennan was let out by the Rangers. The make room for Alex Levinson, who arrived out from late in the season. Three minutes later Frank Kane, pushed home the equalizer by jabbing in a dead puck, which he brought in scoring position by the ex-leaver and Phil Cunningham. The Phil hit, the final one, was let out by the Rangers. Bert McInenly and Jack Shill teamed for the second and final Cub marker early in the middle of the first 20 minutes two teams were destroyed at a pass, but then Fordlund completed a two-point shot, which proved to be the winning goal. At times, the Cubs played very well indeed but they were unable to score for a while, when Motter and Bessler, who are just out of the amateur ranks, made a fine impression with the $500 on hand to welcome the Cub bar.

Casey Should Use Haley's Punting As Offensive Threat, Says Hardwick

By H. R. (Tack) Hardwick

Facing New Hampshire, a minor opponent, Harvard has the first real opportunity in over a month tomorrow to polish its offense in actual play against outside competition. For the last four weeks the Crimson has been so completely occupied in a desperate struggle to hold down the scores of its adversary and has been so thoroughly bottled deep in its own defensive, that any real offensive operation has been practically out of the question. A team must develop confidence in its ability to go to the line with a semblance of consciousness if the players must get the actual feel of an uninterrupted march before the proper swing and the aim so essential to a successful kick can be acquired.

If Harvard can collect itself tomorrow, if it can, as a whole, not only faith in its attack but the actual proof of its ability to function smoothly and effectively, then Harvard can and will develop into a definite threat to Yale.

Harvard has back with speed and power. It has guns that will gain ground if properly and decisively executed. What it now lacks is confidence in its ability to go to the line with a semblance of consciousness if the players must get the actual feel of an uninterrupted march before the proper swing and the aim so essential to a successful kick can be acquired.

First bout at 8:15. Main event at 10 p. m.

By Jack Conway

Len Macaluso shoots for the world heavyweight wrestling championship when he battles Ed Don George in a finish bout at the Garden tonight.

Colgate's greatest football star is determined to win the feat of Gus Sonnenberg who stayed from the college gridiron to the heavyweight wrestling throne.

Macaluso has youth, speed and a determination to reach the heights in the mat game. He refused a flattering offer to play football for the Redskins so that he could concentrate on his drive for George's title.

Macaluso was a fullback at Colgate. He was coached by Andy Kerr. Len won All-America recognition. He was a much greater football player than George. He now says he will prove he is also a better wrestler.

A Macaluso victory would be well received by the fans. There is a desire to see a new champion, and it is felt Macaluso would fill the bill.

Coin Picks George

Jack Conway's famous Magic Coin picked Ed Don George to successfully defend his title as world heavyweight wrestling champion against the drive of youthful Len Macaluso at the Garden tonight.

TOURNAMENT

By Associated Press
McBarnes, Nov. 16—American stars headed by Harry Cooper of Chicago and Jimmy Thompson of Los Angeles, who had a brilliant two-round total of 142 were solidly entrenched today in the leadership of the "Three Melbourne Cuppers" Open Golf championship.
At the end of the second day's play, Gene Sarazen, whose amazing 63 yesterday had put him in the lead, was tied with Joe Earl, also of the United States, in second place with 143.
In the next ring were Leo Diegel of Philadelphia, and Ky Laffoon, Denver youth, at 144, a position they shared with A. V. Ran, native professional.
Craig Wood of Hollywood, N. J. was in a five-way tie with a card of 146. Joe Kirkwood of New York now playing in his native country, and Phil Runyan, American professional champion, had 149, while Dunmore Shute of Philadelphia was at 151 for the two days.
Thompson's 70 was the best round of the day, four strokes under par. The California player, magnificently through intermittent rain storms and his long drives enabled him to go over the back nine in a dazzling 35.
Leslie Garrett, British amateur was unlucky enough to draw Sarazen as a partner today and the big gallery threw him badly off his game. He took a 74. Jack McLean, Scottish-Irish champion, virtually clinched amateur honors with a fine 71 for an aggregate of 140.

DISCOVERY HAS HOOF TREATED;

By Dave Wilson

Bowie, Md., Nov. 16—Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt's Discovery one of the year's top-notch three-year-olds, was fired several days ago, at the Sagamore farm in the Worthington Valley. He is expected to be one of the 1935 season's outstanding handups.
Wayne D. Wright, leading winning rider during the recent Laurel and Pimlico seasons, is on his way to Lexington, Ky., where he will confer with Joseph E. Widener relative to signing a 1935 contract. Wright said before leaving that he had several offers, but would likely accept the Widener job.
Trainer Danny Stewart is shipping 15 of J. E. Widener's horses from Elmendorf Farm, Ky., to Miami to await the winter's racing at that point.

Jockey Eddie Arcaro departed for Newport, Ky., where he will rest until it's time for him to go to work at Miami.
Richard Dickman, of Baltimore, is here making the ending engagements for the Watson brothers—Bobby and George. The latter is a 98 pound apprentice and, like his brother, is under contract to R. Robertson, father of Alfred Robertson, one of C. V. Whitney's contract riders. Bobby Watson is one of America's leading winning riders with 129 victories. His brother is said to have won sixty races.

A mixed carload of horses left Philadelphia this morning bound for Tropical Park, Florida. In the shipment were the horses of Godfrey France and George Reilly.

Marshall Cassidy, steward of the New York Jockey Club, is one of the three stewards here. The others are Al Weston of Baltimore and J. B. Campbell of New Orleans.
Track Superintendent Dick Pandling states that every one of the 1200 available stalls on the ground has an occupant. Among the latest stallions to get in from Naragansett Park, R. I., are the Hastings stable, J. R. Donovan, William Gallagher, and Arachon stable.

ling the ball in play deep in its own territory where its offense is greatly restricted. If you can apply constant bruising pressure on its kicker, a "break" is the common and not the exceptional result.

A "break" can be either a blocked or a short kick. Then turn on the head with your strongest plays, with your best cards as yet unrevealed—and get that score!

While Harvard is suffering the fate of possible reliance on a Yale team whose season to date has been none too satisfactory, the Orange and Black would assure of an unquestioned high ranking for any intersectional struggle.

Whereas its early season games have been against considerably weaker opposition than Yale has been forced to face, the material and the manner in which that material has been handled demands unquestioned respect.

The market continues to put a good show for the bulls, with frequent flashes of strength and steadily increasing activity. ... to be a little harder to get the ball rolling, than it was in the early part of the year. Many groups that have been heretofore lurking in the shadows make the picture as confident as ever, as would appear on the surface, and until the market has corrected it would seem desirable to take it easy.

The new flow of gold to this country is another bull point for the operators.

Perhaps it is wrong to allow prices to be driven by the fluctuations of the stock market or economics but it takes something of the sort to get the market to rise the last few years. On one hand, the market has been recovering prosperity by the return of profitable business levels. On the other, the market has been recovering to receiving too much for its production and has been added with mandatory expense and in answer to their plaintive cry for more money. The market is all off with steady increases in the price of money, and the market is now frothy amidst of inflation and deflation which seems to have a good chance of mixing a sea and water.

Quot speculation has been going on in the news analysis for some time. The market has been gradually purchasing a broad range of values of gold stocks. The latest news from the market (mans indicates a steady flow of cash into the market).

Analysis

Some weeks ago we ventured the opinion here that when, as and if the break in the gold block came it would be a relief to the franc. A Universal Service dispatch today tells of a declaration of the French government that the adjustment of its currency. We specifically suggested that the franc would find the water it needs. It is gradually becoming clear that the gold block, despite whatever is said in the publications, is not a great big happy family.

Briebs: Plotting a course for investors or traders is no inaccurate science. "I don't think there are all the possibilities," says Briebs, who says the paper "is a question of how to bring it all together." For the present, he does expect to see the uncertainties in the situation will bring any and all of them.

It is hard to see a wild building wave when most of the potential for a new building wave is already in the air. It seems the possibility of domestic and world inflation will become a reality.

Any reaction in the share market here will feature the index rising on four to five points up, that bracket between a mild up with good news it will surely appear. The start of the week is counting in with us. Out of such a bottom we would expect the metals to have the same lead as the oil. The Ralls have done nothing and have a minimum following. Because in their case the market is little except in the instances where

SEES ALUMINUM INDUSTRY AS IMPORTANT

By B. C. FORBES
Pittsburgh, Nov. 15—I find that Pittsburgh is hopeful rather than towncast.

Although the main products of the world's iron and steel metropolis are durable goods, the city has acquired quite a diversity of manufactures. Some are doing well.

Take aluminum. The Birmingham-based Young Industries is growing with the rapidly increasing usefulness of the heavy youth.

Vice-President George Stanley of the Birmingham Com-

B. C. Forbes Company of America tells me that its business this year will be 70 per cent above its recent leanest year.

My aluminum education, I discovered, had been badly neglected, so probably is yours. Did it ever occur to you that when you carry a piece of chewing gum in your pocket, the chances are that it is wrapped in aluminum foil? Aluminum now figures in your collapsed tube for tooth paste and shaving cream, in railway cars, in milk bottles caps, in wrist watches, in the kettle, in the handle of the 25-ton truck, and, of course, in aluminum plays an important part in our latest streamlined trains and transport planes.

This city of Pittsburgh even has an aluminum bridge.

"Transportation on land, air and water consumes the largest tonnage of aluminum," Mr. Stanley informed me. "But the cooking utensil field, the electrical conductor and building fields are extremely large users."

Fortunate are cities which have attracted some of America's good getting, youthful industries. Pittsburgh has its share. Thanks to William Jacob, publisher of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, I have enjoyed the privilege of receiving round-table information from many of Pittsburgh's foremost city leaders.

The net impression is that Pittsburgh has fared better than many other centers and that sentiment now is becoming at least moderately optimistic.

While Pittsburgh doesn't expect to boom until recovery gets farther ahead throughout the country, nevertheless several highly encouraging developments are already recounted.

For example the United Engineering & Foundry Co. and the Master Machinery Co. each have Again, Ralph Leavenworth, of Westinghouse, records that one of the busiest bee-hives of industry in Greater Pittsburgh is the "railroad aisle" out at Westinghouse headquarters. A $3,000,000 order for the Pennsylvania Railroad is being rushed

John J. Casey, who, among other things, is president of the Swindell Dressler Corporation, which manufactures furnaces for various lines of industry, states that there has set in widespread, keen demand for improving processes and that "everything indicates we will continue to be busy in 1935."

MARKET CHANGES

New York, Nov. 14 (AP) — A more than 8 point break in American Telephone sent the utility shares and the market in general lower.

The selling in American Telephone was consistent throughout the session and sent the stock down to a new low for the year.

Other utility shares were mostly higher by American Telephone and the solidated Gas American War Works and North American, which moved against the trend and ended the day with a fractional gain.

RAILS RIGGISH

Rally led by Aircraft group brought a firm tone into the morning. Activity picked up near the finish.

Railroad shares were sluggish and fractionally lower as Atchafalaya, New York Central, Lackawanna, Southern Railway and other recent trading favorites slipped.

General Motors was a favorite appearing on the tape frequently and finishing higher. Chrysler and other motor shares were just about steady.

Prevalent share reports brought some demand for the merchandise shares principally from the United States Steel and other in industrial stocks held in a comparatively narrow range, although the market was among the firm.

Tobacco was in the hands of the speculators in the day's trading with L. P. & Myers B. in the van of the advance.

Mining shares were in steady supply and worked moderately lower.

CAR LOANINGS OFF

The carriers did not make any emotional response to the car loaning figures for the week ended Nov. 10, which disclosed a slight increase over the corresponding 1935 period since the week of July 24.

The total of 504,912 cars was off 21,718 from the previous week, which was a little less than a seasonal decline. The gain over the same week last year amounted to 1,653 cars.

Most market commentators were of the opinion that, broadly speaking, the background of equities continued quite satisfactory. They pointed out that considerable reason for confidence was provided by the gradual rise in industrial activity, the maintenance of the retail sales figures, and the growing evidence of a friendly government policy towards business.

However, at the moment, apparently, there was without any apparent inflationary pressure, and some analysts advanced the thought that this factor was not yet out of the market picture. They pointed out, notwithstanding the recent administrative changes in the government, the government must continue its substantial outlays if business activity and the price level are to be sustained.

UTILITY TAXES ARE THREAT TO DIVIDENDS

Wall Streeters Disappointed by Action of Ra-

By HUGH B. BRADSHAW
The tax law which is now reaching proper legislative form has been passed by the Senate. Both houses of Congress have agreed on the same bill, and light companies received the good news of the much needed services in New York the situation threatening to jump all reasonable bounds. As a result, daily stock analysis on the pages under the heading of the United States Gas Co. party has a new problem on its hands. There is a possibility of raising the utility tax from 1% to 3%.

One can only wonder the result, but if it is the President George B. Cortright, as he is now known, as such an increase would be a very good dividend by his company.

The new flow of gold to the country is another bold point.

For the administration has moved whatever doubts that remain of its intention to increase the mandate of the law by sufficient silver to make the 25 per cent. limit a real and palpable backing of the currency. Naturally, the more silver comes in the more silver will be brought . . .

Country has been a great success as a result and not only in the case of gold and silver but in the case of stock and bonds. The country has been a great success in the case of stock and bonds. The country has been a great success in the case of stock and bonds.
